

THOMAS C. SCHELLING, Born April 14, 1921

AB University of California, Berkeley, 1944; PhD Harvard University, 1951.

The U. S. Bureau of the Budget, 1945-46.

The Economic Cooperation Administration in Europe, 1948 to 1950.

The White House and Executive Office of the President, 1951-1953.

Associate Professor and Professor of Economics, Yale University, 1953-58.

The RAND Corporation, 1958-59.

Professor of Economics, Harvard University, 1958-90.

John F. Kennedy School of Government, Harvard University, 1969-90.

Member, The National Academy of Sciences

Member, The Institute of Medicine.

Fellow, The American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

The Frank E. Seidman Distinguished Award in Political Economy.

Distinguished Fellow of the American Economic Association.

The National Academy of Sciences Award for Behavioral Research Relevant to the Prevention of Nuclear War.

President, The American Economic Association, 1991.

Honorary Doctorates: RAND Graduate School; Erasmus University Rotterdam; Yasar University, Izmir; Tufts University; Colby College; Sharif University of Technology, Tehran.

Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Science, 2005

Publications on military strategy and arms control, energy and environmental policy, climate change, nuclear proliferation, terrorism, organized crime, foreign aid and international trade, conflict and bargaining theory, racial segregation and integration, the military draft, health policy, tobacco and drugs policy, and ethical issues in public policy and in business.

National Income Behavior, McGraw-Hill 1951

International Economics, Allyn and Bacon 1958

The Strategy of Conflict, Harvard University Press 1960

Strategy and Arms Control (with Morton H. Halperin), Twentieth Century Fund 1961

Arms and Influence, Yale University Press 1966

Micromotives and Macrobehavior, W. W. Norton and Co. 1978

Thinking Through the Energy Problem, Committee for Economic Development 1979

Choice and Consequence, Harvard University Press 1984

Strategies of Commitment, and Other Essays, Harvard University Press, 2006