Engelman Berger Attorney Bradley D. Pack Tabbed “VLP Attorney of the Month”

(Phoenix, Arizona) Phoenix-based commercial law firm Engelman Berger announces Bradley D. Pack as “Attorney of the Month” awarded by the Volunteer Lawyers Program for commitment and outstanding advocacy in complex matters. “Bradley has shown a true passion and dedication to the Volunteer Lawyers Program, and the results speak for themselves” says Steven Berger, a founding partner.

Bradley’s VLP client was severely disabled and in danger of losing their house due to alleged fraud of the seller. Brad fought for the client and his family and helped in achieving a settlement that worked out a solution to allow the client an opportunity to keep the home their family has lived in for years. “In my opinion, the practice of law is a privilege, and none of us achieves anything without help. I consider pro bono work a moral obligation. Beyond that, it’s immensely satisfying to give people a fighting chance.”

Pack also credits Engelman Berger attorney Lorena Chavez with helping him on this VLP client. Chavez spent many hours translating and preparing the clients for court proceedings. “Without her invaluable assistance, we could not have achieved the results we did,” Pack states.

Engelman Berger, P.C. The focus of Engelman Berger, P.C. is the resolution of legal issues arising in business. A large portion of the firm’s practice is related to resolution of disputes arising in the United States Bankruptcy Court, where the firm regularly appears representing creditors, trustee’s, debtors, lessors, and those interested in purchasing assets. In addition, the firm has an active commercial litigation practice, water rights practice, and real estate transaction practice. The firm regularly represents lenders in loan documentation and loan workouts, and closely held businesses as general legal counsel, helping business owners resolve a myriad of legal issues. The firm also assists in new business entity formations, and in resolving business related disputes regarding commercial leases, ownership issues, real estate, and other issues. Listening to the client’s goals, spirited representation in legal disputes, and creative resolutions make up the foundation to this firm.
